

ANGELA BOERSMA

PRINCIPAL ARCHITECT

AIA, NCIDQ, LEED AP

Angela's background includes degrees in Interior Design and Architecture and minors and/or emphasis in business/economics, hospitality design, and historic preservation. Her project expertise is widely varied, and includes everything from development master planning to small additions and renovations.

Angela's focus on client needs and goals and commitment to understanding organizational operations and workflows helps her envision and design interior spaces that are most supportive of an organization's mission and operational efficiency. She also ensures the integration of the architecture, interiors, and landscape teams so that spaces function well across the entire project - from the site plan all the way through to the scale of furnishings.

Angela's focus on the long-term implications of design solutions brings issues of stewardship and sustainability to the forefront of her practice, and she's always thinking about how the decisions she helps clients with now will impact future generations and broader audiences.

PROJECT ROLE

As both an Architect & Interior Designer, Angela typically works closely with owners in helping to define the project's needs and overall goals, as well as helping to coordinate the other members of the project design team. She heads up much of the digital 3D modeling for projects, helps with project concept development, construction drawings and specifications, and addresses the other miscellaneous details from project staffing to client/constituent meetings.
